Prof. Iara Dundas

In this course we will examine cross-cultural developments in the visual arts and architecture in Italy, France, Germany, and Flanders in the 15th and 16th centuries. We will focus on specific works to learn how art and architecture was used in the domestic, religious, political, and civic realms. We will examine how the occupation and standing of artists and architects changed over time. And we’ll explore how art and visual media was used to disseminate discoveries about science and the world of exploration.
